Constraint	Possible effect of constraint	details
Hardware/Software	Screen size could be an issue	The site is simple enough that this should not be a constraint. Also, the site adjusts to the browser, so I don't think that hardware or software is going to be a significant constraint.
Performance Requirements	Some older computers might not be able to	This is very basic. The font is the only possible constraint, since it's so text-based, and I made it sans-serif, so most users should be able to view this site.
Persistent Storage	Users unable to store data on the cloud/the	COULD be a problem; would need a server to store data.
Budgets	The budget for this project is zero, so it would not be able to get off the ground.
User Inputs	The program is only as good as the data input, and users have to do it themselves	The users would have to USE the site in order to get the benefit. I created two independently generated features to increase the variability of experiences, though, which I found to significantly engage me (even though, or perhaps BECAUSe, I was the one who created them).